About Me

I was born in Israel to a Moroccan-Jewish family, and my journey as an artist has always been deeply connected to my heritage and spirituality.

My work explores the intersection between creation, faith, and the human soul. I divide my time between my galleries in Miami and Safed (Tzfat), where I create pieces that blend Kabbalistic concepts, Hebrew letters, and raw construction materials into visual meditations on unity, purpose, and divine light.

For me, painting is an act of prayer — a dialogue between color, texture, and spirit.

My “Genesis” series reflects on the spiritual narrative of creation, capturing the moment just before the emergence of light and the instant after a metaphor for the divine spark within each of us and our potential to rise and create. Through my art, I seek to bridge the physical and the metaphysical, inviting viewers into a shared exploration of meaning, faith, and self-discovery.
